off.the.beaten.wine.path What a special moment tasting @lumewines with winemaker Lane Tanner and Will Henry on the site of their newest vineyard in Santa Maria Valley.

I loved hearing stories about Lane's wine making philosophy. She never followed the trend of big, bold, alcoholic styles. She is known for picking before anyone else in the season, resulting in fresher styles lower in alcohol. Lucky for us, and her, this style is now becoming the

off.the.beaten.wine.path I had the great pleasure of touring Santa Rita Hills with the amazing Brian Babcock of @babcockwinery and @winemillita. It was one of the most magical tasting experiences I've ever had. We tasted each wine in the vineyard in front of the actual vines it was grown on. Chill!

Radian vineyard was the first stop where the Radical Pinot Noir and the Limit Chardonnay are grown. Chardonnay has never been high on my list, and for those of you who say you "don't like Chardonnay", this is a must try! It is cool, crisp, mineral and fruit driven without that overpowering butter and oak quality

This catchy phrase describes the wine region of Santa Barbara County. More specifically, to its seven AVAs (American Viticultural Areas) of Santa Rita Hills, Santa Maria, Buellton, Lompoc, Los Olivos, Ballard Canyon, Happy Canyon, and the newest, Alisos Canyon. I had the great pleasure of spending two perfect days there thanks to Santa Barbara Vintner's Association and The Wine Militia, who came up with said catchy phrase.

I cannot stress enough how underrated I feel this region is. This only became clearer over the course of my two day visit. I stayed at the Landsby Hotel in Solvang, a quaint little Dutch town full of windmills and bakeries. The hotel rooms were modern and spacious, beds were comfortable, and I had a gorgeous bathroom complete with soaking tub and bench in the shower. My only regret is that I didn't get to stay there longer to really take advantage of the space.

Our first wine stop of the day was Babcock Winery. I had the honor of meeting the winemaker, Brian Babcock and soon learned that the vast percentage of his vineyard had been wiped out by Pierce's Disease, a bacteria that kills grapevines. Brian wanted to keep making wine so he has chosen to source grapes from Santa Rita Hill's best vineyard sites. We hopped in his truck to take a look. Let the adventure begin!

How a group of sommeliers saved this Los Angeles restaurant

Lauren Hirsh grew up in wine within the Los Angeles region as her family owned and operated Cielo Winery in Malibu. With roots in the tasting room and making wine, Lauren and her brother set out on a venture to create a wine club for Stonehaus in Westlake Village. Lauren has recently taken on consulting for restaurants and bars within Los Angeles and has opened up her own wine bar called Club 14 in partnership with 14 Cannons Brewery as well as given aid to restaurants in distress during the COVID-19 Pandemic being featured in a recent LA Times article with a group of influential sommeliers doing the hard work in LA.

Post Visit Recap:

- Lauren was able to order cases from not only Sta Rita Hills producer but also from Santa Maria and Santa Ynez Valley producers from this trip
- Lauren is also putting currently planning on incorporating wines from Santa Barbara into her new wine club programs
- Lauren gave multiple referrals to her tasting group sommeliers who also were mentioned as the influential sommeliers in the LA times article

BONUS REFERRAL ITINERARY VISIT - JJ Zuczkiewicz

Lauren Hirsh gave a great recommendation for JJ Zuczkiewicz (Sommelier at AOC / Rustic Kitchen) to connect with the Wine Militia team in a request for assistance in coming up to SB wine country to visit a handful of wineries and vineyards with the association. She visited 7 wineries, purchased wine, joined wine clubs and now has a dedicated a monthly pilgrimage for here sommelier group to come to SBC. Her next visit will be June 23rd on her own.

One of the greatest things about living in the Los Angeles area according to writer, lifestyle expert, and confessed wine lover Martha McCully is the freedom to hop in the car and head north for two hours to be transported to the land of horse (and camel) ranches, citrus, and endless vineyards in time for dinner. Enjoy her front seat ride to Santa Barbara wine country, which happens to be home to 175 wineries and tasting rooms producing some of the best vino in all of CA. Here are a few of our favorites.

SANTA BARBARA WINE COUNTRY CRUISING

Santa Barbara County, just two hours from L.A. includes the quintessential California coastal town of Santa Barbara, beloved for its urban tasting rooms, gorgeous weather and Spanish revival architecture as well as Santa Ynez Valley and Santa Maria Valley home to some of CA's best wines, winemakers, and vineyards. It's the sun, fog, and ocean breeze that makes the famed wine regions' conditions perfect for production. A relatively new wine-making region, though you would never guess that from the old-world style of their signature vino. Wine connoisseurs take note: there are seven appellations or AVAs (American Viticultural Area) in Santa Barbara County with the most recent Alisos Canyon AVA federally recognized in 2020.

Your Vegan Guide to Santa Barbara Restaurant Week

Santa Barbara Restaurant Week has vegan options! Every year when your city's restaurant week rolls around, you might find yourself scouring the website, fingers crossed for some plant-based items on the menus. The good news is, more mainstream restaurants are realizing the importance of catering to the growing demographic of vegans, plant-based foodies and veg-curious. The restaurateurs in Santa Barbara are no exception. For the third annual Santa Barbara Restaurant Week (February 21st- March 6th, 2020), there are a number of plant-forward offerings at some of the best restaurants in town, in addition to participating vegan-friendly wineries and hotels. Now is the perfect time to pop over to Santa Barbara for taste and sip of its culinary scene.

High engagement on online wine education channels, sommeliers, and foodies as well as consumers. (128K Followers)

Some say a vacation isn't defined by the length of the distance you go, but the ability to allow yourself to step into another world. And with Covid severely restricting airplane expeditions, the day-trip adventure has become the way to hack travel in 2020. Which is why Edible Skinny delighted in voyaging to the perfect Los Angeles Stand-in for Europe: Solvang, CA. The gering finish. As Kelly said, "It's like it's saying 'I'm here' with a lot of pucker; like it's the wink on a semicolon." An opinion that's echoed in the 91 points rating they received in the July 2020 edition of Wine Enthusiast.

Another amazing discovery was their "Cote del Sol" Cabernet. The "Side of the Sun" is Lucas & Lewellen's reserve level-Cabernet crafted from a combination of 92% Cabernet Sauvignon, 8% Syrah. This bottle toys with the aspects of time. The Cabernet grapes are first harvested from the "sunny side" of their Valley View vineyard. Once these grapes are gathered, Mother Nature puts her time and effort into energizing the grapes on the more shaded side of

Details matter here. The space is tattooed with graffiti of produce on its exterior walls, there's a craft butcher counter filled with house made treats, and multiple dishes unexpectedly involve caviar. Kelly and I started off with one of their "Get In My Belly," aka salads, which consisted of Smoked Pheasant, Basil, and Citrus. This lettuce had the Bliss Point perfection of the richness of a smokey gamey meat and the healthiness of farm to table veggies. One bite and we knew: this is the type of place

HOME FEATURE OF THE WEEK WINE REGIONS ACCOMMODATIONS

OUR REVIEW PROCESS

Our goal as a platform is to taste and review interesting wines crafted by unique wineries across the globe. We're talking stuff that you usually can't just find on any store shelf - stuff that has a heart and soul to where you can really taste the effort and intentionality of the individuals who created it. Sometimes these wines are crafted by tiny producers - other times by larger corporations who chose not to sacrifice quality. When we see a wine created with the intentionality we crave that also exhibits a clear sense of place we jump all over it!

Refugio Ranch Vineyard

wineryreflections Refugio Ranch is undoubtedly one of Santa Barbara County's most picturesque and unique Rhone-focused estates. Located southeast of Solvang in the foothills of the Santa Ynez Mountains, this idyllic ranch contains an incredible patchwork of vineyard blocks that each take advantage of the natural undulating hills of this sprawling 415 acre property. The Refugio Ranch estate sees warm daytime temperatures offset by cool and often foggy nights, which helps it produce deep and powerful wines that manage to retain incredible acidity and freshness.

wineryreflections We're absolutely ecstatic to be heading out to Santa Barbara Wine Country this weekend!!! In a normal year we make it a point to visit and share about new wineries at least once a month, but 2020 has thrown COVID, severe fires, and of course a wonderful new baby at us which have all kept us hunkered down home while we focus on ensuring our family's health and safety.

Thankfully things are finally getting a little more under control out there and we've been very happy to learn that wineries throughout Santa Barbara County are taking significant precautions to keep their patrons safe. We're so excited to be able to

halliedaily Our home this weekend. 🍷

Our first road trip in 2020, with the @santabarabarawinecountry. This amazing property is by @grassinifamilyvineyards, my son believes magic happens during the night here, and we have to agree. 🍷🍷

Since the beginning of the pandemic, Hallie Swanson visited the wine country and her family's first road trip. Much like many Angelenos, Hallie slowly beginning to travel again and wanted to stay close to home, but still have an experience outside of Los Angeles. With a mega-following almost 400,000 people on Instagram, it was important that Hallie shared and promoted her experience transparently to entice her following. Posting her experience through Instagram posts and stories, she was able to give a first-hand look at recommendations on the road-tripping to Santa Barbara Wine Country from Los Angeles, places to visit, places to wine taste - all while doing so safely. Hallie received - and continues to receive - comments and questions about her experience. One thing worth mentioning is the sparked interest received from other high-end and celebrity media partners looking to visit wine country.

Folded Hills- Winery Farmstead Ranch

bythestem Santa Barbara ❤️❤️ to my Los Angeles followers: did you know that we have luxurious wineries and world class wine only a 1-2 hour drive north?? We are so spoiled! Why are we not there every weekend?? 🥰 there are 6 AVAs (sub AVAs) in Santa Barbara County:

- 🍷 Sta. Rita Hills
- 🍷 Santa Maria Valley
- 🍷 Los Olivos District
- 🍷 Santa Ynez Valley
- 🍷 Ballard Canyon
- 🍷 Happy Canyon

Each having completely different microclimates and terroirs. We find everything from Rhône varieties such as Syrah, Grenache, Cinsault, Roussanne to Burgundy style Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. Have you visited any wineries in here?? 🍷

This media partner's visit was to provide real-time experience from the eyes of an actual person - specifically a highly influencer person in the wine community, from Los Angeles. During her time in Santa Barbara, she was able to share her experience on social media at Folded Hills, Pence Vineyards, and Carhartt Vineyard. Casleah was able to drive attention to the involved vintners social media channels - therefore growing their social media channels as well. Numerous followers of Casleah's 13,000 followers commented that they would like to visit Santa Barbara Wine Country. Upon further research, the majority of these people are Los Angeles residents, interested in wine, and have expressed they have never been to Santa Barbara.

Example comments on post:

- delicious_journey_ How great! I've been thinking of going to the wineries in SB, I'll reach out. Thanks for offering with recos ❤️ 🙏
 - terriersandterroir I can't wait to get to Santa Barbara someday 🍷❤️
 - glow.and.vino Yes!!! I love Santa Barbara wineries 🍷 planning to visit @pencevineyards next week! ❤️ Cheers!
 - callmekristenmarie I need to visit someday!
 - corksunleashed It's my go to spot when I want to get out of LA! 🍷🙌
 - cawinefangirl I really want to explore Santa Barbara!
